

Bennington Banner

CHRYSLER
INSPIRATION COMES STANDARD

THE ALL-NEW
CHRYSLER 300
GET YOURS NOW ▶

BenningtonBanner.com

HOMES

CAREERS

AUTOS

MARKETPLACE

SUBSCRIBER SERVICES

ARCHIVES

September 09, 2004

Bennington, VT

EMAIL ARTICLE LINK TO ARTICLE PRINT ARTICLE

Article Published: Thursday, August 26, 2004 - 2:15:59 AM EST

Home

News

Births
Business
Headlines
Community
City & Town
Region
Nation
World
Obituaries
Sports
Weather

Features

Calendar
Education
Entertainment
Health
Health Quarterly
Now and Forever
Tempo
Personals
so yeah
Special Sections

Opinion

Editorials
Columnists

Jeffrey Busch, left, Stephen Davis and their 2-year-old son, Elijah Davis Busch, pose for a portrait after a news conference in Hartford, Conn., yesterday. Busch and Davis are among seven gay couples recently denied marriage licenses in Connecticut who filed a lawsuit Wednesday challenging the constitutionality of the state's marriage laws, which exclude same-sex couples. All seven couples applied for the licenses in Madison, a shoreline town in the central part of the state. (AP Photo/Jack Sauer)

OTHER ARTICLES IN THIS SECTION

9/9/2004

Group challenges legality of Conn. gay-marriage laws

By The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)-- Seven gay couples recently denied marriage licenses in Connecticut filed a lawsuit Wednesday challenging the constitutionality of the state's marriage laws, which exclude same-sex couples.

All seven couples applied for the licenses in Madison, a shoreline town in the central part of the state.

"In the end, this is a case about real people with real families asking their government to treat them fairly," said Mary Bonauto, a lawyer representing Gay and Lesbian Advocates and Defenders, or GLAD, the same group that successfully challenged marriage laws in Massachusetts.

Letters

Advertising

Classifieds
Newspaper Ads
Hot Jobs
Find a Car
Find a Home
Legal Notices

Services

Contact us
About us
E-mail newsletter
Subscriptions
Archives
Advertise with us
Photo reprints

Site Search

Enter search term

Go>>

Advanced Search

- Police write 'thank-yous' not tickets
- Clavelle sets agenda; wants more debates
- Leahy spends more than Republicans
- Candidate McMullen says he creates jobs
- Pension costs go down slightly for local gov't
- Blacks, Hispanics continue gains on MCAS standardized test scores
- Dress codes get stricter at school and workplace
- Abortion foes say buffer zone law unfairly applied
- Parishioners challenge closing in court
- Vt. judge finds woman in contempt over lesbian custody battle

"We're looking forward to having marriage protect our love," Suzanne Artis said.

Attorney General Richard Blumenthal will represent the state. In a statement, he said that the legislature has not authorized the issuance of marriage licenses to same-sex couples in the state, or approved same-sex marriage ceremonies.

"Several statutes and court decisions indicate clearly that the General Assembly has authorized a marriage relationship only between a man and a woman," Blumenthal said. "These laws, like any duly enacted state statutes, are entitled to a presumption of constitutionality."

Bonauto, the lead attorney on the case, said she expects the case to take three years. She was the attorney behind the landmark Massachusetts case that led to the legalization of gay marriage, beginning May 17. She was also involved in legal action in Vermont, where same-sex couples can now seek civil unions.

Katy and Kristen Gossman of Meriden, who were married in Massachusetts in May, are plaintiffs in a different case challenging a 1913 law in Massachusetts barring out-of-state gay couples from marrying there. They said they hope to see the marriage laws change in Connecticut so they can save their own marriage.

"We're happy about this lawsuit because if we win then there would be no

The lawsuit, filed in New Haven Superior Court, names town officials in Madison and Department of Public Health Commissioner J. Robert Galvin. The public health agency handles the administration of marriage licenses in the state.

Plaintiff Suzanne Artis and her partner, Geraldine, said they have been together for a decade and have three children. The legal rights that come with marriage would help them protect their family, both women said.

View Our Listings

Hoisington Realty

Looking for a Hot Job?

questions asked about our marriage license in Massachusetts," said Katy Gossman, a special agent with the FBI.

Connecticut same-sex marriage advocates have resisted going to court for years, instead working to change state law.

Anne Stanback, president of Love Makes a Family, a same-sex marriage advocacy group in Connecticut, said that will not change. However, her organization is supporting the lawsuit.

"We have always said we would never close the door on supporting a lawsuit in Connecticut, but that we wanted to begin the process in the legislature," said Stanback. She also said her coalition plans to lobby for a same-sex marriage bill when the new legislative session begins in January.

"We strongly support the lawsuit by GLAD," she said. "We believe something as important as the fundamental right to marriage must be fought on all fronts."

---

*Associated Press Writer Laura Walsh contributed to this report.
Copyright © 2004 Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.*

 RETURN TO TOP

---

Copyright ©1999-2004 New England Newspapers, Inc., a member of MediaNews Group, Inc.

Privacy Policy - Children's Privacy - Terms of Service

Associated Press text, photo, graphic, audio and/or video material shall not be published, broadcast, rewritten for broadcast or publication or redistributed directly or indirectly in any medium. Neither these AP Materials nor any portion thereof may be stored in a computer except for personal and non-commercial use. The AP will not be held liable for any delays, inaccuracies, errors or omissions therefrom or in the transmission or delivery of all or any part thereof or for any damages arising from any of the foregoing.